

Waiopahu College 10W Youth Researchers 2015

The design of the Cool? study aims to maximise youth participation throughout the research process. The 10W class of Waiopahu College, 2015, is proud to be collaborating on this project during a series of workshops throughout the year. Together we've designed the questions for our nationwide online survey of youth to get a broad picture of youth experiences of cold housing. We've been analysing the preliminary data together and are working on reporting the final results of the survey. We've also started work on a qualitative research project using online interviews to further explore youth experiences of fuel poverty and cold housing and will be collecting data for this study very soon. Our final workshop series will involve analysing the qualitative data, summarising and disseminating the results. We'll be presenting key results at a lunchtime seminar in Wellington on November 5. The 10W youth researchers are involved in all of these steps. To find out more, please contact Kimberley O'Sullivan.
